Reviews

This book may be worth purchasing. It typically fails to expense excessive. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.

Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from University of Illinois School of Education: Bullet No; 16, the Content of American History as Taught in the Seventh and Eighth Grades In 1912, one of the writers of the present paper was requested by the Committee on Economy of Time of the Department of Superintendence (National Education Association) to make an investigation of minimal essentials in elementary geography and history. He presented the problem to a graduate seminary in educational values in the University of Illinois. During the second semester of 1912-13, the problem was discussed and several possible methods of determining minimal essentials in the various school subjects were devised and tested. None of these methods seemed, however, to be adequate to the solution of the problem in so far as geography and history were concerned. During the following year, the problem was submitted to another group of graduate students. Two methods of approach were subjected to a preliminary test. One of these was based upon the assumption that the relative value of historical and geographical facts may be at least roughly determined by the frequencies with which references and allusions to these facts appear in periodical literature. The other method involved a rating by competent authorities of the relative significance of geographical and historical data.
