Excerpt from The Rights of the Church of England Under the Reformation Settlement: A Letter to the Lord Bishop of Winchester The first step in this inquiry was to show what the arrangements, sanctioned by the great Statutes of the English Reformation, were for the decision of spiritual matters. The first Statute, as it is the most important, which deals with this subject, is the Statute of Appeals. That Statute (24 Henry VIII. Cap. 12) recites in its preamble that if any cause of the law divine happened to come in question, or of spiritual learning, then it was declared, interpreted, and shewed by that part of the body politick called the Spirituality, now usually called the English Church, which always hath been reputed and also found of that sort, that both for knowledge, integrity, and sufficiency of number, it hath been always thought, and is also at this hour, sufficient and meet of itself, without the inter meddling of any exterior person or persons, to declare and determine all such doubts, and to administer all such offices and duties as...
